I found out about this game through reddit. I am satisfied and haven't looked back since :). Very fun game, challenging and exciting.

I give it 5 out of 5 Little Boy Butts (LBB)

5/5 LBB

I recommend.. The game was difficult in the beginning and the drops seem to show up at the worst times but this game can be addicting and fun as you aim for the top score.. this game is absolutely amazing, it is a great party game but i wish it had online multiplayer. 10/10 would play instead of do homework. 6 Months ago the Devs said that they plan to add achievements. The game still doesn't have achievements.

It almost looks like a Silent Hill game. Having said that, I dont know if its worth the full price, I would wait for a sale.. If you liked Htol#NiQ, you'll like this. Same kind of puzzles, same art style, same vibes. The only real major difference is that you have complete control instead of having to guide your character via mouse controls.

This gets points for turning the blood ON, but I like Htol#NiQ a lot more. This feels like it leans too far into the grimness that these little NIS games have a bit much, but it's still a really enjoyable distraction.

No servers.

Try to host a server. game crashes

Would not recommend.

*refunds. quote;this is the game warsim, a command prompt based game, which, though simple on the visuals, is amazing in depth, and the game is outright spectacular. when i first heard of it on itch.io, i supported it, due to its potential. The developer is quite committed, and is a very kind person. Two traits any dev should have. I believe the game takes the comparison of graphics vs gameplay to a whole new level: minimal graphics, maximum gameplay and replayability. If Mount and Blade had a baby with Dwarf Fortress, this would be the result. The Dev has done what many big publishers would consider outright impossible: he created a masterpiece without realistic graphics or linear gameplay. I rate this game 10/10. audio is minimal, but i like it. Final comment, to the developer, Keep up the amazing work!"

. One of my favourite childhood games. Basic idea is simple and entertaining for a while. Uses SecuROM DRM (limited amount of installations) and the multiplayer is not available because of GameSpy shutdown. The single player consists of 21 missions labeled "Challenges". They start to feel tedious after a while and at the later levels winning is determined by your AI allies, who can be decent help or totally random. Some could argue that this reflects the multiplayer experience. Cannot really recommend a broken game.. Sucks that no one plays it...

would have an amazing player base if it went the JACKBOX style...

seems like devs are just out for money. If you're terrified of that moment when you're in a swimming pool at night, look down, you can't see the bottom and imagine what might be lurking down there waiting for you, like I am, this game is your worst nightmare.

This game scares me to death (quite literally because sometimes I close my eyes and when I open them, whoop I'm dead). All you want to do is move frantically, run away, but you are stuck moving at a snail's pace while you see your impending doom below you. Or, rather, don't see. Because you get pulses of vision and then everything goes dark again. I am playing this game slowly, one level in one sitting, because it freakin scares me. The anticipation of the unknown deaths you will suffer makes the whole game play experience so tense.

I bought this game to scare me. It delivered, better than I ever expected. It may not scare some, but if staring into the dark scares you, just wait until you see what's staring back.. i played it for a little bit and thought it was rather good. soon realised how boring this game actually is. if you want a racing game go for Forza or Grand Turismo as their better designed games and less repetitive racing
